

I was very skeptical at first about paying 10 dollars a month just for radio. After several months however I have found that it is more than worth the money. Satellite radio is the wave of the future and just because some outdated group that isn't taking advantage of this like the National Association of Broadcasters knows they are missing out. Their decision to make up for this is to sue to prevent certain features on satellite radio. I pay for this service gladly and have every right to hear traffic and weather and whatever else they provide. Competetion is what America's business system is founded on and just because one group is outdated and slow to change doesn't and shouldn't give them the right to legal protection. Thank you for your time.

Jon Hildenbrandt